How to Build Your Local Organization

Adapted from Keys to Adventist Community Services

Experienced community service leaders have found that there are a number of important sequential steps in building a viable organization. These steps may need to be scaled according to your church or program size. If you follow the steps outlined here, you will assure your program the best opportunity for success.

- 1 Form a joint planning committee with other Adventist churches in the area. Church pastors and key lay leaders from each Adventist church in your city or rural area should be invited to meet together to plan and oversee the development of a program. The mobilization of resources from more than one church multiplies the impact that can be made within an area.
- 2 Agree on someone to serve as project leader. This should be someone who has training in leadership.
- 3 Conduct a comprehensive community needs assessment. It is impossible to know the needs of a community without careful study. A proper needs assessment will reveal a detailed picture of the community, its people, neighborhoods, social problems, felt needs, and resources.
- 4 Officially organize. Whether your organization will be a local unit/department, center, or agency, it must be officially established by the church board or the boards of sponsoring churches. A date should be established for a meeting to approve a constitution and by-laws and elect a group of people to serve as the organization's board.
- 5 The new board should begin to meet immediately. Immediate items on the board agenda include: what services to provide, appointing a director, and which site and which facilities will be used for the operation.
- 6 Develop the program. Develop program plans that outline in detail the services provided, the necessary personnel and budget, and the schedule for implementing services.
- 7 Develop a support base for your agency. Find church members who believe in, and take interest in, the center, who pray regularly for its success, and tell others about its impact.
- 8 Start fundraising. Sources of funding include grants, contracts, online campaigns, direct mail appeals, special offerings, special events, and deferred giving through wills, trusts, and bequests. Successful fundraising takes a great deal of effort over a long period of time.
- 9 Begin to recruit and train volunteers. Recruit and train volunteers needed to deliver the services planned. Potential volunteers include church members, students, and organized groups such as Sabbath School classes.
- 10 Conduct a major kick-off event. It must include an opportunity to invite the entire community, including important civic leaders such as the mayor or local legislator. Be sure to also include the local news media.
- 11 Plan a retreat with the board after the first year. After the first year of operations it is important to devote quality time for evaluation and long-range planning. It will also be time for a careful reflection on scripture and the mission God has given your ministry, allowing quality time for praying together, seeking God's guidance.

Community Service & Urban Ministries

There are an estimated forty million people, including children, living in poverty in the United States. That's more than twelve percent of the population. Jesus calls us—His disciples—to serve those in need, and the Bible is clear that neglecting to do so is sin. Community Service & Urban Ministries will show you why and how you can use outreach and service to help restore the image of God in humanity and lead people to a new life in Jesus.

Burst the Bubble

We are chosen by God to be "salt" and "light." We must make the shift from just going to a church to being a church in the world around us. We must pray for God's intervention in our own lives, listen to people's struggles and challenges, and look for opportunities in the neighborhoods and communities that surround us to serve and demonstrate God's love. Only then will we witness real change—changes in lives and changes in our communities.

Disaster Response

The Adventist Community Services Disaster Response (ACSDR) ministry stands ready to serve the survivors of disasters. It operates with a Statement of Understanding with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), the American Red Cross, and many state emergency management agencies.

ACSDR provides support through:

Community Collection Centers — ACSDR works with community organizations and the general public to gather donated goods when emergency needs exist. Items such as food, blankets, personal care kits, baby care items, cleaning supplies, and new clothing are accepted and processed for distribution by ACSDR.

Emergency Distribution Centers — Donated goods that have been processed by ACSDR may be provided to meet the immediate needs of families. Emergency distribution centers are often based in community facilities, such as high school gyms, church halls, vacant store fronts, or vacant lots.

Multi-agency Warehouses — This is a facility where unsolicited donations can be brought and made available to emergency distribution centers. This process provides a steady supply of goods ready for distribution.

Mobile Distribution Units — Mobile distribution is used to deliver goods into areas that may have been cut off during a disaster or where no other services are being provided. These areas may have been made inaccessible for a period of time due to high water, downed trees, or bridges out. The survivors may not have transportation, or the ability to leave their homes or neighborhoods.

ACSDR provides these services and more following disasters. Visit CommunityServices.org/Disaster-Response to learn more.

AdventSource carries a full selection of ACSDR resources. Visit AdventSource.org or call 402.486.8800 to order ACSDR shirts, banners, jackets, signage, and more. Note: you must have an authorized password to order Disaster Response resources.

Free Course on Disaster Response

This free course from the Adventist Learning Community provides an overview of how ACS responds to disasters and how you can become a volunteer. This course is led by W. Derrick Lea, associate director of ACS. Visit AdventistLearningCommunity.com to get started.

Research results from the American Hospital Association and Physicians Foundation tell us that chronic disease is increasing rapidly in the 100 million of us who are over 50 years of age, while almost half of doctors are reducing their patient load or leaving their practice altogether. Also, the average distance between families and caregivers is 480 miles. This means that more than ever before we must take better care of ourselves and the members of our families.

That's why the Seventh-day Adventist Church is implementing the CareOptions Family Healthcare Advisory, an online caregiving resource platform targeting older adults and their families in our church community. Simply use the exclusive app-based system to access easy interactive tools, customizable to the needs of your family, even your pets!

Visit CareOptions.net for more information and to sign up.

ELECTRONIC REPORTING

ACS hosts free e-reporting software that registers your clients and records services provided to your community. The new user-friendly interface makes recording outreach activities easier than ever and eliminates the need for paper reports.

Use this software to report all community services provided by ACS and all ministries or groups in your church. Report visiting or assisting the sick or elderly, feeding the homeless, providing goods for those in need, and more. The software also captures basic volunteer, income, and expense information.
